TOURS

Bush Presidential Library, with box lunch — Thursday, September 19
9:30 am — Meet at the front of the hotel to carpool.

We will be carpooling to the Bush Presidential Library. Those who are planning to drive to the reunion, or rent a car at the hotel, will provide carpool transportation to those who need a ride.

The George W. Bush Presidential Center, which opened on April 25, 2013, is a complex that includes former United States President George W. Bush's presidential library and museum, the George W. Bush Policy Institute, and the offices of the George W. Bush Foundation. It is located on the campus of Southern Methodist University (SMU) in University Park, Texas, near Dallas. The library and museum are privately administered by the National Archives and Records Administration, while the university holds representation on the institute board.

At 207,000 square feet, it is the second-largest presidential library, behind only the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library in Simi Valley, California. Like most presidential libraries, it includes a full-size replica of the Oval Office and the Resolute Desk where visitors may have their pictures taken. Particular focus is made on Bush's decisions after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, and includes artifacts from the event. Another section includes "Decision Points" interactive exhibits about key events in his presidency, the title taken from Bush's memoir. Other exhibits include Hurricane Katrina and the 2008 global financial crisis, and a collection of items from First Ladies of the United States. A temporary exhibit hall has rotating exhibits from American history. Bush's paintings are also exhibited in the museum. There is a 14-acre native garden adjacent to the site dedicated to Laura Bush, and a farm-to-table restaurant, Café 43.

Holocaust and Human Rights Museum, Dallas— Friday, September 20, morning 9 am — Meet at the front of the hotel to carpool.

Founded in 1984 by Holocaust survivors, the Dallas Holocaust and Human Rights Museum located at 300 N. Houston Street, Dallas, Texas 75202, is a sacred place for remembrance, serving as a home to both horrific history and noble moments. Our mission is to teach the history of the Holocaust and advance human rights to combat prejudice, hatred, and indifference.

The alarming rise in antisemitic and racially motivated acts illustrate that the Museum's work has never been more urgent than now. We take hope from the knowledge that just as hatred is learned, it can be unlearned. The Museum teaches about some of humanity's most incredible stories of struggle and courage to empower our community to be Upstanders, those who take action to create positive change.

At the Museum, visitors experience an immersion into the lessons of the Holocaust, the creation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights following World War II, historical and contemporary genocides, and America's human and civil rights journey. Through meaningful exhibitions, engaging community programming, and pioneering educational initiatives, the Museum inspires visitors to be Upstanders by confronting hatred and promoting human dignity.

JFK Memorial at The Sixth Floor Museum — Friday, September 20, after lunch
After lunch on your own, we will walk to the museum.

The Museum, located at 411 Elm Street, Dallas, TX 75202, chronicles the assassination and legacy of President Kennedy and explores the history of the 1960s through the collections, special events and educational programs. The Museum is located in the Texas School Book Depository building, within the Dealey Plaza National Historic Landmark District. The seven-story building was originally built in 1901 on the foundation of an 1898 five-story structure which had burned down after being struck by lightning. Between 1901 and 1963 the building served first as a warehouse for plows and other agricultural equipment and then housed a grocery wholesaler. In 1963 the building was leased to the Texas School Book Depository Company and served as a distribution hub for school textbooks with regional offices for education publishers.

After the assassination, the building remained leased to the company until 1970. Then, after much community discussion, Dallas County acquired the building and undertook a major restoration project. Finished in 1981, the exterior of the building was restored to its 1901 appearance and the first five floors were used for administrative and government functions. During this time, the top two floors, including the infamous sixth floor, remained empty.

After a decade of development and community soul-searching, on Presidents Day (February 20, 1989), The Sixth Floor Exhibit opened as a response to the many visitors who come to Dealey Plaza to learn more about the assassination.

SILENT AUCTION

You are invited to participate in the Silent Auction to be held during our 77th annual reunion, September 18 to 22, in Irving, TX.

If you have a hobby or a craft that you love to do, then consider sharing. Last year's Silent Auction consisted of objects made by hand, found items, or items someone thought you would cherish. We made more than $2,000! — all going to our association to fund The CUB magazine.

Bring your donated items to the hospitality room upon arrival and join the fun bidding on your next treasure! Items given to highest bidder and all payment (cash or checks only) due at end of the banquet on Saturday night.
